About Me

With more than 17 years of experience in the construction industry, Ben Collins leads quality, compliance, and safety strategy at KDD Construction. He ensures projects meet the highest standards of regulatory compliance, including Building Regulations, the Building Safety Act, and ISO quality, environmental, and occupational health & safety standards.

Ben oversees the performance and coordination of the company's external health and safety partners, ensuring alignment with regulatory requirements and company standards. Through the development and refinement of robust processes and procedures, he supports consistent delivery, effective risk management, and operational efficiency

Having progressed from site management into senior quality leadership, Ben brings both practical insight and strategic oversight across residential, commercial, and higher-risk building projects. He is committed to driving continuous improvement, strengthening compliance frameworks, and supporting scalable growth as the business evolves.
